(FOR ADDRESS ONLY.)

Arab Restaurant, Cairo. Here, under the feathery date-palms and dum-palms, native Cairo comes to drink coffee and sherbet, to eat seethed kid and cloying sweetmeats, and refresh itself with cool melons, lemons, and lettuces. The Fellah woman in the background is carrying away a basket full of greenstuff, probably beans, a staple food in ancient and modern Egypt,

Cairo. Restaurant, Cairo. Here under the feathery date-palms and dum-palms native Cairo comes to drink coffee and sherbet, to eat seethed and anything soft, and refresh itself with cool melons, onions, and lettuces. The Fellah woman in the background is carrying away a basket full of foodstuff. Cairo, the Paris of the East, is the most picturesque city in Egypt.
